Frequently asked questions

What are some funny things to write on a birthday cake?

Short lines fit best: "Still younger than this recipe," "The frosting lies about your age" or "Wish big. Dishes later." Keep it under seven words so it fits around the candles. Write it in a contrasting color of frosting so it's easy to read.

Why do we put candles on birthday cakes?

Many historians trace birthday candles to ancient Greece, where people placed candles on round cakes for the goddess Artemis. Later, German kinderfest celebrations used a candle for each year of a child's life. Today, blowing out candles and making a wish is a worldwide tradition.

What is a good birthday dinner?

A good birthday dinner is the birthday person's favourite meal. Popular picks include pizza, tacos, steak, sushi and homemade pasta. A shared dish like a taco bar or a hot pot makes the dinner social. Finish with cake, of course, or a donut tower.

What is the best birthday cake?

The best birthday cake is the one the birthday person loves most. Chocolate, vanilla, red velvet and carrot cake are favourites. Some people choose an ice cream cake or a cheesecake instead. Ask ahead, then add a funny line in frosting to make it personal.

What is the most popular birthday cake flavor?

Chocolate and vanilla are usually the two most popular birthday cake flavors, with red velvet, funfetti and strawberry close behind. Funfetti, a vanilla cake with sprinkles baked in, is especially popular for kids' parties because it looks like a celebration inside and out.

What is a good birthday burger pun?

Try "Happy birthday, you're one in a bun-dred" or "Patty on, birthday star." Fans in the Bob's Burgers community on Reddit love making up burger names for occasions. A good burger pun swaps a word for bun, patty, cheese or grill.

What do you write in a birthday card for someone who loves oatmeal?

Try "You're the oat-standing friend I'm lucky to have" or "Have an oat-rageously happy birthday." Reddit card makers in r/cardmaking suggest adding a tiny drawing of a bowl. Oatmeal fans appreciate a cozy, warm message as much as the pun.

Why are donuts called donuts?

The name comes from dough plus nut, most likely because early versions were small, nut-sized balls of fried dough. Washington Irving wrote about doughnuts in 1809, and the shorter spelling donut spread on American shop signs in the 20th century. Both spellings are correct, so a donut birthday pun works either way.

When is National Coffee Day?

In the United States, National Coffee Day is September 29, and International Coffee Day falls on October 1. If a coffee lover has a birthday close to either date, pair a coffee birthday pun with a joke about celebrating twice. Any other time of year, the birthday itself is reason enough for a second cup.

What should I write on a pizza box for a birthday?

Keep it short enough to fit in marker on the lid. Lines like you're a slice of perfection or another year, extra cheese work well. If the pizza is replacing the cake, add a candle drawing and the person's name. For a party with several boxes, give each one a different pizza pun so guests read them all.
